

December 4, 2020

Contact: Tate Smith, Conservation Director

Phone Number: 307-286-9840

1,295 acres conserved in Sublette County

The Wyoming Stock Growers Land Trust (WSGLT) and Bousman Livestock Inc. have partnered to permanently conserve 1,295 acres in the Upper Green River Valley, just east of Boulder, Wyoming.

The Bousman family initiated a conservation easement on the ranch in 2017. Their desire to conserve the property rests in the agricultural and wildlife values inherent to the ranch, and a pressing need to prevent fragmentation due to development. The ranch is made up of several original Green River Valley homesteads, and has been in the Bousman family since the 1940s. Supported by the agricultural conservation easement, the Bousman family intends to steward the ranch as a livestock operation until retirement, when it will remain in the family and in production. Brad Bousman noted “I am relieved that the ranch is protected from subdividers and will continue into the future as an agricultural operation.”

Nestled between the Wind River and Wyoming mountain ranges, the ranch provides majestic views and critical wildlife habitat for deer, moose, and pronghorn. The property is home to ½ mile of Boulder Creek and three small ponds, which sustain fish and waterfowl populations. The ranch is also an important resource for Wyoming sage grouse, the entirety of the property being in Core Area, with several Wyoming Game and Fish identified lek sites nearby.

The conservation easement was funded in part by the Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS) and the Wyoming Wildlife Natural Resource Trust (WWNRT). The WSGLT appreciates the continued commitment and partnership of NRCS and WWNRT to conserving working agricultural landscapes in Wyoming. With the Bousman Livestock Inc. conservation easement completed, WSGLT hold conservation easements on more than 72,000 acres under conservation easement in Sublette County and over 284,000 acres statewide.

Tate Smith, WSGLT Conservation Director, commented on the closing of the project noting “ The property has tremendous agricultural and wildlife values and situated in an area of Sublette County that is under the highest development pressure. We are very thankful for the Bousman family and their dedication to this project as we navigated a complex year. This project will ensure many generations to come can find their purpose and place on this ranch.”

***

Established in 2000, the Wyoming Stock Growers Land Trust is Wyoming’s first and only agricultural land trust and is dedicated to conserving Wyoming’s agricultural lands, which also provide open space, wildlife habitat, and other environmental benefits for future generations. To date, WSGLT has completed 104 conservation easements in partnership with 79 families, conserving over 284,000 acres of Wyoming’s working agricultural landscapes.

Bousman Ranch

